It's a funny dream appeared again and again during my childhood.. In the dream, when I open the door of a 1980s' wardrobe and behind those stuffed clothes, there's an entrance connecting to an empty room. When I grew up, I can still dream this room when I opened the door in a wardrobe. Even my family moved our houses several times and changed new wardrobes many times, this room was still there. However, things increased in the room where a desk and curtains could be found. It's weired that I have no memories about this room and objects inside in reality. I even feel that wherever I go, I could find such a room after I open a wardrobe.
